Dedication

Students at Clinton Christian Day School appreciate the many experiences they have and are greatly influenced by its purpose. Unconsciously they inherit the school's traditions.

Future students will also share experiences, inherit traditions, and be influenced by its purpose. In time they too will add their imprint and develop the school's personality in its contribution to the kingdom of Christ. Because of our high hopes for the future students--to them we dedicate the 1962 ECHO.

THROUGH THE EYES OF THE TEACHER

As I think about my group of six, seven, and eight year olds, I realize that they are at a very active age. They are full of ambition, full of pep, and very wiggly. No game is too rough or too hard for the boys. They are a happy lot of youngsters and they enter into every activity with a lot of enthusiasm. No matter what we are doing; whether it is learning to write a new letter, reading a new story or doing arithmetic, they are eager to please and eager to learn.

To tell you the characteristics of my children would mean writing a different paragraph for everyone. Each one is an individual and has his own traits. But they all have this in common. They want to feel important, and they want to be loved.

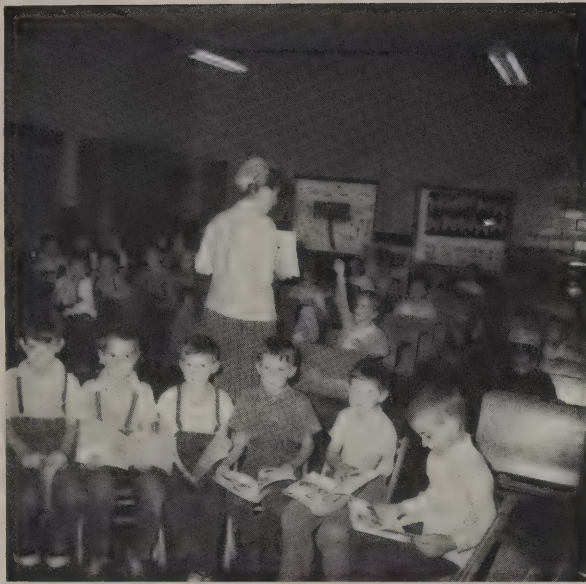

I am happy to be a first and second grade teacher. They are the most lovable children in the world.

TEACHER'S VIEW OF HER CHILDREN

As I look over the group of boys and girls, I see a variety of characteristics which range in varying degrees of maturity and quality. Each is an individual with a different bundle of traits, but they all add up to thirty-three very interesting and lovable personalities which makes for a very interesting group with never a dull moment for the teacher. Their enthusiasm runs high. Their sensitive lives are a challenge to me as a teacher to help them grow mentally and spiritually in the will of the Lord Jesus.

THE TEACHER'S GARDEN

This garden of thirty-one budding plants which has been entrusted to me for a short while, is a great source of anticipation. No two of them are alike. While some are short and sturdy, others shoot their heads skyward, as if to a more lofty goal; Some seem to have been planted with more care than others, but in everyone we see evidence of an interested guardian, faithfully watching and trying to promote their welfare.

In this arrangement of maturing stems and leaves we notice some are much more mature than others. While some of the buds are almost at the point of springing open, others show hardly any evidence of the fragrance and beauty which we know will also soon be coming forth. Most of them, however, already reveal the general structure which they will keep.

One sees that there are still many ways in which to help them grow strong and properly nourished before they become mature. Sometimes only a little digging of the soil, or a little drop of moisture at the right place results in a rewarded freshness and new form. However, most of the work done now, will not reveal immediate results, not until many days hence when the buds will have opened and will have revealed their patterns and sent forth their fragrance.

And so, only, when we look to the tomorrow of the delicate and fragrant blossom, do we gather the initiative to cultivate and nourish these tender and loving forms which He has created for His own glory.

Words of Appreciation

Words could never express my deep appreciation for the school. Within these walls I have had many enjoyable experiences. Because of many of these experiences, many of my ideals were formed. I also feel that the teachers and the many Christian friends have done much to help me on to a deeper Christian life. Yes, Clinton Christian Day School has done much for me!

-Maxine Kauffman

I am very thankful for the Christian atmosphere this school has. All subjects are taught in light of God's Word. Having chapel period every day has proved very inspiring to me. Having guest speakers has acquainted me with various ministers, authors, and other Christian workers. The Bible class discussions are very challenging to me. I especially appreciate the close relationship which seems to exist between students and teachers.

-Edna Mast

I am sure that words, in themselves, are inadequate in expressing my full appreciation and gratitude for the tremendous inspiration, growth, and insight I received through these ten school years, that came and are now gone for me, at C.C.D.S. In truth I can say that the school was one of the basic controlling factors in my young Christian life in so far as stimulating the growth and building of personality development, self-reliance, resourcefulness, and independence and faith, love, and loyalty to Christ through better acquaintance with Him, His Word, and His Church, in my school experiences.

-Thomas Bontrager

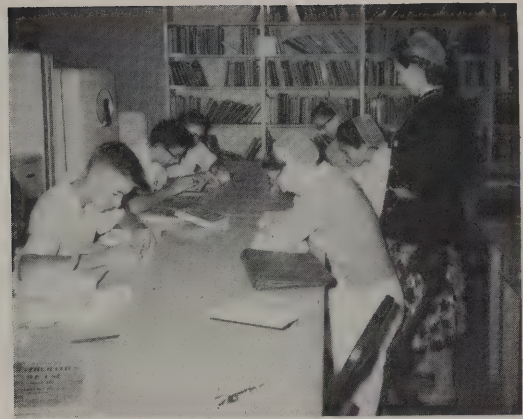

The Bible and speech periods have always meant the most to me. In each of these classes you were free to express yourself the way you felt. In every class the teachers put a Christian emphasis on the subject. In the Bible periods you were given a selection from the Bible to read, so this helped you to grow in your Christian life. I truly want to thank all my teachers for what they have done for me in my Christian life.
